Summary	With COVID-19 entering our lives uninvited, the number of women with access to sanitary pads has gone down drastically. For underprivileged women, feeding themselves has become a question mark because of job losses. During times like this, their menstrual health is relegated to the background. Poor menstrual hygiene can result in fungal and bacterial infections across the reproductive and urinary tract. They are also at the risk of Hepatitis B and cervical cancer. Most female school children from rural areas got access to sanitary pads only from their schools. With schools shutting down indefinitely because of COVID-19, coupled with the inability to move freely, has made it extremely difficult for women to get sanitary napkins. Rotaract Club & Women Development Cell of DSPSR took initiative under scheme "Act of Kindness" and visited places near Rithala on 24th September, 2021 where they distributed 600 sanitary napkins to the slum women.
